BARBARA STANWYCK
Her Hand Injured Recently in Movie Lot Mishap

Hollywood, July 23 (AP)—Barbara Stanwyck, mistaken for an autograph hunter, got "the works" from a policeman and was rescued by Robert Taylor—at the preview of her newest film last night.

An ad but pulled down on her head and her coat collar flipped up, the actress was shoved back by the officer who showed back autograph hunters swarming around Taylor, her escort.

Miss Stanwyck attempted to follow the actor.

"No you don't," commanded the officer, fiercely putting her into reverse.

Once safely through the mob, Taylor found it was a strange woman who had held of his coat tail. He rushed out again.

Miss Stanwyck, sat weeping on the curb, rigorously guarded by the law.

"I'm going to sock you if you don't let her go," threatened Taylor.

By this time the officer had disappeared.

Heat Wave Due Here Tomorrow

Another heat wave is on the way, for tomorrow, the weather man said this afternoon, but there were those who thought the news was a hoax.

By the official thermometer, however, the readings were only in the low eighties today.

Tell tomorrow, now, said Meteorologist G. Harold Nye. "Forecasts are it will hit 90, perhaps even go higher."

Doctor Asks Court Stop Wife Betting

Salem, July 23—Allying his wife gambles on the horse and refuses to stop, Dr. Constantine Popoff of Haverhill filed an injunction suit against her in Superior Court here today.

According to the doctor, Mrs. Margaret Popoff in his absence last week, moved out all the furniture, silverware and left in their home in Haverhill Heights, leaving it nearly bare.

He asks the court to enjoin her from selling any of the household furniture and to stop her from interfering with his home or business and taking any court action against him.

"She has dealt with horse racing bookmakers and in other ways lost money," he stated in his court papers.

Although I have restrained with her about these extravagant ways and gambling and have requested and demanded that she stop, she has refused to do so.

brought up a gun. It put me in terror of my life. I realized I was in extreme danger.

"I dashed to the garage door—plunged into the vestibule, then jumped into the kitchen."

"Who was that man with a gun at the garage?" asked Norton.

"He was Thomas Elder," Norton replied.

Norton and Elder both were members of the school staff on the night, three years ago, when the youthful headmaster, Dr. Elliott Foster, was shot to death as he reached for a book in the study.

TELLS OF FRIGHT

A shagreen black, fished over in a window, killed him. The speaker saying never has been killed.

Norton told the court today he was "so frightened I called my wife into the kitchen. She responded for police."

Several times Judge Thomas J. Hanford interrupted him to prevent him from telling what he told his wife before police arrived.

"A large man with a ruddy face, he talked slowly and calmly, never raising his voice, and never looking at me," he said. "He came in from the study, and he was sitting with his legs crossed and his eyes on his account books, occasional notes as Norton testified.

Now a retired farmer in Alton N. H., Elder smiled occasionally during the testimony. Directly behind him a wife called in a single pink gown and a white hat.

ADMITS DIFFERENCES

Under cross-examination by Attorney Charles R. Fairhurst, Norton described the murder of Foster as "a man was holding" as "about as big as a pencil."

Fairhurst suggested that Norton was not sure of the man's name, and Norton, between you and Mr. Elder, Fairhurst asked.

"We had differences in matters of school management," Norton replied.

"How long have these differences been going on?" asked Fairhurst.

"For 12 years," answered Norton.

Norton testified he had "quite often" Elder "for interference with the teacher's office."

"I reported a certain incident about him (Elder) to Dr. Cutler," testified Norton. "It might have been called a complaint."

Dr. Henry Cutler was the headmaster at the school at the time.

"Was this complaint something you spoke on Mr. Elder to?" asked Fairhurst.

"Yes," Norton replied.

"What was it you reported?" asked Fairhurst.

"I reported," declared Norton, "meeting him late in the evening and he and his associate in each other's embrace."

MISDEED FINDINGS

Norton, in reply to further questions, said he did not recall a whole lot that appeared his office from these charges.

FURNISH CLUES IN SEARCH FOR DOCTOR

WHERE DR. WALKER'S CAR WAS FOUND
Auto (in Insert) Was Left Here in Beverly

WEYMOUTH DOCTOR TRACED IN BEVERLY

Dr. Walker, and said that he, too, was a physician.

One thing about the man's appearance which played in his memory, said Dr. Yudin, was that his shoes were as though he had been walking through pineud.

GAVE MAN AID

Dr. Yudin said he gave him a lift and he asked for and then dismissed the visit from mind until he read the papers today.

The other Beverly physician, Dr. Herman Yudin, said he had seen the man who identified himself as Dr. Walker, according to the doctor.

After taking the money, he lingered in the hall, then walked down to his automobile.

Demeter said that the doctor appeared in an unusual place, through a little melancholy, he always appeared sad, said Demeter.

Acquaintances in Weymouth described Dr. Walker as a personable, well-mannered man in his early 30s, contented in his home and with a promising future as a physician.

Tall, spare, nervously gray-haired, Dr. Walker was considered a handsome man.

A previous tragedy figured in the doctor's life.

In 1930, after graduating from Harvard medical school, he married Miss Louise J. Martin of Atlanta, Ga. Shortly afterward, the young bride returned to visit her parents in Georgia and was killed.

Running 1000 miles to be with his wife, Dr. Walker arrived only in time to teach her bedside before she died.

Two years later he married again and moved to Weymouth a year ago in the summer.

Other members of his family included a twin brother, Dr. John H. Walker, a pathologist living in Watertown, N. Y., a brother, Dr. H. Walker, a dentist in Washington, D. C., employed by the government, and a sister, Dr. H. Walker, a nurse in the U. S. Army.

LAST SEEN MONDAY

Anxiety mounted at the doctor's cottage on Broad street, East Weymouth.

Five days ago, after returning from a happy weekend at Newbury with his family, Dr. Walker left his cottage with his wife, Mrs. H. Walker, and his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. Walker, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., and they were missing.

Police searched the shallow river bed, and tramped through nearby woods, seeking traces of the missing physician in vain.

Beverly police were joined by the missing man's father, Dr. John H. Walker, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., and they drove around in a police cruiser in the hope of finding some trace of his son.

Police Find New Witness in R.I. Doctor Slaying

By ARTHUR J. QUINN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Providence, July 23.—The probe into the slaying of Dr. George W. Webster took a surprise twist this afternoon when a new witness appeared and told police he had overheard the doctor making an appointment to meet a man at 1 p. m. last Friday.

It was exactly 27 minutes after 1 o'clock that morning when Dr. Webster's voice came over a telephone line to police headquarters, saying:

"I've been shot."

The new witness, whose identity is cloaked by investigators, said he had overheard a doctor making an appointment to meet a man at 1 p. m. last Friday.

HEARD DOCTOR'S WORDS

The bus stop is directly in front of McElwain's variety store and back door to Simonds' drugstore where Dr. Webster was shot.

The witness was certain, he told investigators, that just before the doctor and the man parted company, Dr. Webster had said:

"I'll see you at one o'clock."

Dr. Webster got into his automobile and drove away, the witness continued, and the other man got into another car and left.

TELLS OF TWO WOMEN

Quick disclaimers for the first time told two women who are subjects of all sorts of rumors and speculations in the city today actually go to Dr. Webster's house in Emeline street on Monday, July 22, four nights before the murder.

"These two women were the ones who were present when a telephone operator delivered 'no drugs' and 'check' messages to the house, the deputy said.

"He had been in the habit of going there where Mrs. Webster was in town, at the doctor's invitation and at a good and sufficient reason.

OTHER ACTS CHAFERONE

"When she was asked to go to the house on the night of July 12, she invited the other woman, a close friend of hers, to go with her to observe the contrivances, so as to speak.

"She felt that it would not look well for her to go alone to a house where the doctor was present, and his wife was not. Her explanation satisfied us."

"These women 'paraphrased' as a report had it? Police was asked.

"Absolutely not, as far as police are informed," was his reply.

What, then, about the man seen in shorts with Dr. Webster on the night of July 12? The man seen in the hammock in the back yard?

"That man has been interviewed by police," the deputy said. "He gave us a satisfactory explanation of the time of his presence. No. He is not under suspicion."

Was the deputy asked Quick if there were other men who had been seen near the Webster house at the time of the murder who were under suspicion.

"My answer to that is that there were 'tag' parties at that doctor's house on some occasions. And that, naturally, all those present are under scrutiny. None, so far, proved of any importance in our investigation."

Was the deputy certain that these other affairs were, on every occasion, "tag parties" only?

"So far as I can learn, yes," was the answer.

FEARED Mrs. King, So HE HID LANDFORD SEEN BY NEIGHBOR

Salem, July 23.—The late Hiram Landford, ex-mayor of Newburyport and then nearly 90 years old, had behind a neighbor's garage to avoid Mrs. Clara M. King, according to testimony given here today.

The administrator of the Landford estate is seeking to have Mrs. King enjoined from making any further claim to the $100,000 former mayor left.

Landford's neighbor, Sidney W. Drown of Tremont street, Newburyport, told:

"One night, some time after Mrs. King's husband had fled out of town, Mr. Landford alleged to me that he was hiding in the garage and peeking around the corner."

"I went out and said, 'What are you doing there?' Then I recognized Landford."

"SCARED OF KING"
"He put his finger to his lips and said, 'Sh-h-h, don't say anything. Mrs. King is out there and I don't want her to see me.'"

According to Drown this episode was repeated four times and he declared Landford told him he was scared to death of Mrs. King.

"One day, about two years before he died, Mr. Landford came to my house, crying and told me Mrs. King had put him out of his car while they were driving to Boston, because he had not paid her something she wanted. He had been with a long way."

"He said she was a bad woman and he was afraid of her."

Mrs. King, who claims she is ill, is again absent from the hearing today, but the case went on without her, on the ruling of James Foley, the master. But she was absent without just cause.

ACCUSED AS GOLD BIGGERS
Attorney Thomas F. Murray, who is on office, associate of Attorney James P. Caron, counsel for the administrator, testified Landford told him:

"I can't get away from her, she's after me and I'm afraid of her. She and her husband came to get me to sign a note for $100,000 and when I refused, Mrs. King pushed me over the head. I had a severe pain two or three days. I said they're gold diggers."

"When I have any free cash she's after me. When I have a few dollars I have to hide it to keep it from her."

Residing putting Landford out of his automobile, according to Murray, Mrs. King on another occasion refused to let him out at his home and "abandoned" him. "Till, he said, Landford had told him.

4 HELD In Jewelry HOLDUP WOMEN LURED WITH PARTIES

Cocktail parties, lavish dinners and night club rendezvous in Palm Beach, New York and Narragansett Bay were the lure used by a jewel robbery gang who slugged and robbed Mrs. Elizabeth J. Williams, 35-year-old wealthy Washington divorcee, of $8000 in jewels in a downtown hotel yesterday, police said today.

Four members of the gang were arrested by New York police today as they aughted from an automobile at a downtown rooming house. Police say one of them had his pockets stuffed with jewelry stolen from Mrs. Williams.

CONFESS ROBBERIES
Boston and New York police are still seeking the "contact man" for the mob, who is described by Mrs. Williams as a good dresser and versed in all the arts of etiquette.

He posed to her as a millionaire heir to a mining fortune.

The four men arrested, Frank Mancuso, Meyer Lemberky, Jack Davenport and Murray Cohen, all of New York, admitted to detectives to two other robberies of wealthy widows in New York hotels that netted them nearly $150,000 in jewels since May.

Mrs. Lucille D'Amico, wealthy widow whose address was withheld, said she met the "contact man" and identified Lemberky and Cohen as two of the men who robbed her on May 18 in a downtown hotel.

TO FLY TO N. Y.
Mrs. Ann Wilson of Texas, another victim of the gang who was beaten and robbed of $5000 worth of jewelry on April 8 in another downtown hotel, identified Cohen, Lemberky and Davenport, as the men who attacked her with blunt instruments, beating her into unconsciousness.

Captain Francis M. Torman of New York station said today he would take Mrs. Williams, their most recent victim, to New York by plane to make identification of the quartet.

Mrs. Williams described herself as the divorced wife of a wealthy tobacco magnate, who had control of tobacco plantations for the Agricultural Adjustment Administration of the New Deal, and daughter of a former U. S. Senator from Maine and she met the "contact man" in a swank Palm Beach hotel.

TELLS OF BANCING
She admitted to police having previously met the man who described himself as a millionaire.

On leaving Florida she went to New York. There again she met the "millionaire" and they dined and danced together.

From New York she went to Narragansett, where the "contact man" followed her.

Narragansett, O'Connell of the Black tie station, who issued the warrant with New York detectives, declared.

"After the contact man recognized Mrs. Williams as a good prospect, he had wounded her out about her jewels and learned she would be at the Narragansett Hotel Monday, he started the ball rolling."

VINCE BOSTON HOTEL
"On Monday, Mauffert called Mrs. Williams from New York saying he was the son of a certain millionaire."

During the conversation with her he mentioned mutual acquaintances and eventually furnished by the contact man.

3 'HIKE' FROM N. Y. TO SEE MARTHA RAYE

PATTY LEES JOHN LEVIN TERRY NICHOLAS

Most any actress has her stage door Johnnies but it isn't every thespian who can boast of fans who go hitch-hiking to trail her idol. But with Martha Raye currently appearing at the Metropolitan, it is no idle boast her fans flock in as hitchhikers.

From the Paramount theater, New York City, where they had viewed Martha in 70 consecutive performances, Patty Lees, (left), John Levin, and Terry Nicholas of Brooklyn, Pelham, and Newark, respectively, tramped to Boston to the stage door of the Met to again see their favorite actress.

Trio See Their Idol At 70 Performances

Tattered and torn and not a little foot-weary but wearing triumphant grins, three Martha Raye fans hitch-hiked to the Metropolitan Theater yesterday from New York City.

The ardent devotees of the talents of Miss Raye are Patty Lees, 19 of Brooklyn, Terry Nicholas, 19 of Newark, N. J., and Johnny D. Levin, 21 of Pelham, N. Y.

Starting Wednesday night at 5 p. m. from the Paramount Theater where they had viewed every performance of their idol, the three traveling by way of the thumb arrived at the stage door of the Met at the low hour of 4 a. m. and assumed a cheerful seat.

Patty, Terry and Johnny had never met until two weeks ago. The opening day of the acclamation-mongering appearance of the Paramount New York, Johnny shared his lunch with the two girls. Their ardent admiration for the actress of the movie star provided a bond of friendship among the three.

HAVE ONLY 35
Daily they met as neighbors in the very front row of the theater. When Martha's run at the Metropolitan ended, the trio couldn't bear the thought of separation from their idol, so they decided upon the trip to Boston.

Pooling their funds and achieving the enormous sum of three dollars, they took the road. It was a joyous reunion they had with Mrs. Raye in Boston, who by this time had become acquainted with their families faces in the front row.

Their first worry was whether three seats in the front row were obtainable. And they tipped a coin as to who would get the side seat.

"We even brought our Sunday clothes," said Johnny.

"And when my money (three dollars, remember) runs out, we're going to get a job," said Terry.

"I got good notices," said Patty. "I should make a good waitress."

TAKEN TO RITE
But only $2.60 remained of the original sum. And what with meals and everything, it didn't look too good. However, Martha's performance of the afternoon her three followers left for her, obtained two rooms for the youthful trio, in no two a swank hotel than in the Ritz-Carlton.

As to the wash-bowen girl who has risen to such sudden fame, she is the big, yod and not-so-small, most, is exceptionally low spoken in private life.

One has to be perpetually on the alert to hear her in ordinary conversation. Accompanying Mrs. Raye was her 20-year-old husband, Bud Westmore, of the famous cosmetic Westmore brothers.

It was he who gave Martha Raye her first tip on makeup. They met at the Paramount studio. And it was a romance.

They have a ranch, And Martha has gone domestic.

FOES OF BEATEN BILL DRAFT REFORMS

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

Washington, July 23 (AP)—A special subcommittee of eight senators from the Senate Judiciary committee was named today to draft reforms for the minor federal judiciary as a substitute for President Roosevelt's abandoned Supreme Court bill.

Foes of the President's bill were in complete control of the subcommittee. They were Reuben McCarran, Nevada; Dietrich, Illinois; McGill, Kansas; Van Nuys, Indiana; Connally, Texas; and O'Mahoney, Wyoming, Democrats; Borah, Idaho; and Austin, Vermont, Republicans.

Only Dietrich and McGill supported the President's original bill. The subcommittee will confer with the Department of Justice officials and an effort will be made to incorporate in the measure some provision to stamp out racketeering in federal bankruptcy cases.

SEEK ADJOURNMENT AUG. 15
As the subcommittee began the labor, administration leaders there Congress into high gear in hopes of adjourning by August 15. This plan had the approval of Vice-President Garner, who returned from Texas to serve as mediator in ending the five months' battle over the court issue.

The opposition's substitute bill will authorize the attorney general to intervene in cases where the constitutionality of federal laws are involved, and direct immediate appeal of decisions in such cases to the Supreme Court.

Senator Connally (D) of Texas announced he hoped to include provision to prohibit federal judges from issuing injunctions to block enforcement of federal laws. He said he would seek committee approval for applying the law to all federal laws.

The 1 C. C. rule requires that three federal judges, one of them a circuit court judge, must concur in an injunction to prevent enforcement of any 1 C. C. rule.

Connally said such a law would save much of the expense incurred when a single federal judge prevents enforcement of a law passed by Congress and approved by the Supreme Court.

He said the committee hoped to beat this time limit.

SEEK TO OUST FARM BILL 'OUT'
HUDSON IN MAJORITY THIS SESSION

In an effort to remove Harry Madden as town council, a committee of Hudson residents today petitioned Attorney General Paul A. Davis to bring suit, returning proceedings against the official.

The petition charges that Madden, in his position as an ex-officio member of the legal committee of the Board of Selectmen, succeeded in having himself appointed as town council. He is also chairman of the board of selectmen.

Attorney General Davis took the petition under advisement and announced that he would set a hearing date at the same future if both sides cannot reach an agreement.

Roosevelt Asks World's Fair Fund
Washington, July 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt today asked Congress to appropriate $10,000,000 for federal participation in the New York World's Fair and $1,500,000 for participation in the 1938 State Horticultural Exposition at San Francisco.

The new appropriation conforms to authorization bills already passed by Congress.

REVEALS LYNN SECRET BRIDAL

At Gloversville, N. Y., on May 31, Charles A. Collins of Lynn took as his bride in a secret wedding Gertrude E. Campbell (above), also of Lynn.

This was revealed by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Campbell, Collins' father-in-law, in the Lynn institution for Savings.

WAGE BILL NEXT UP FOR ACTION

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Leaders placed the administration's wage and hour bill today at the top of a congressional program that may be curtailed by early adjournment.

Majority Leader Borah said the Senate would debate the measure next week.

As modified by the labor committee, it would set a board fix minimum wages up to 40 cents an hour and a maximum work week of less than 40 hours. Products made by children under 16 would be banned in interstate commerce.

The House labor committee has yet to approve a wage and hour bill. Influential members, however, from North Carolina, would enact one before adjournment.

The bill from that proposal and the substitute bill in speed up lower federal courts the program was modified. Leaders today discussed the legislative situation with President Roosevelt to learn which measures he wants considered.

PARTIAL COURT GAINS SEEN BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, July 23 (AP)—A high administration official reported today that President Roosevelt thought that offered by opponents of his original court bill would be necessary to achieve his broad court reorganization objectives.

Notwithstanding the action of the Senate in killing the administration's court program, the administration spokesman said the President felt some progress has been made toward those objectives.

But, it was added, it will be up to Congress to decide whether reasonable general legislation is to be enacted.

IN GOOD HUMOR
President Roosevelt declined to comment publicly on his press conference on the court issue in Congress. He was asked if he contemplated a further campaign for his objectives, and dismissed the question goodhumoredly with the answer that he had not done any campaigning.

Throughout his crowded press conference, the chief executive was smiling and good natured.

The administration spokesman reviewed the problems of the federal judiciary since 1912 when, he said, the late Theodore Roosevelt campaigned for President on a court change program.

For 25 or 30 years thereafter, the President was concerned with the demand for a court reorganization and the maintenance of order on the court. During years when court agitation was prominent, he said, the courts themselves made their decisions more and more in line with legislative intent.

That situation prevailed, he said, until the administrations of President Coolidge and Hoover, when the courts, he asserted, proceeded more along legislative lines.

The brought a realization generally, the spokesman continued, that agitation had to be removed and this was begun with President Roosevelt's surprise message to Congress on February 5, requesting a revision of the lower and higher courts.

PARALLEL DRAWN
The spokesman asserted that President Roosevelt believed an interesting parallel now exists as a result of the administration's effort in this Congress with the days when the "court issue" was first raised.

He believed, a large part of the court program has already been accomplished, temporarily at least. One of the principal gains the President was represented as occurring was that the country has been made enthusiastic about the court reorganization as a result of the court agitation in Congress. He added that the Constitution is not intended to make social and economic reforms, if they are necessary to the general welfare.

The administration spokesman was asked if President Roosevelt was satisfied with this measure of progress, and replied that he felt that was so. He said, but still said a long way to go.

ACTION UP TO CONGRESS
Asked if the President considered further legislation on the subject was desirable, the spokesman called attention to Roosevelt's editorial in the New York Times, subject, and added that Congress has three methods of acting—acting at all, rejecting recommendations, or approving recommendations.

The spokesman noted that there actually was approval among certain elements of Congress a feeling that Congress now should go home and leave the remainder of its work to a future session.

It is up to Congress, the spokesman added, to say when it is going to quit.

Shot, Youth Plays Harmonica, Dies

He was fatally wounded at Wetherbee farm, Brookhaven, last night by a fellow farmhand, Vincent Burns, 19, of Concord street, Cambridge.

Burns told police he did not know the 44-caliber rifle he carried was loaded. As he entered the room, he playfully pointed the rifle. His friend pulled the trigger, and then watched Mulholl slump under the blast.

The wounded lad died a few minutes later, before medical assistance could be brought.

The Brighter Side

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright 1937 by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and other rights reserved. Distributed by Universal City Syndicate, N. Y., July 22.—In some minor details, Saratoga Springs remains slightly out-of-date.)

For instance, an inexperienced guest at one of the big hotels here, that opens only for the racing season, is surprised to find a big coil of rope, which he is advised by porters to use for his special use. The idea is that should the guest discover a conflagration raging about his palace, he is to lower the rope out his window, and go down, hand-over-hand, to safety, like a trapeze performer after completing his act. One end of the rope is anchored to a hook in the room.

Happily, there never has been occasion in upwards of seventy years for the guests of the hotel to use the ropes as a means of escape from fire, so about the only thing that can be said against them is that they seem a little outmoded. The idea of the ropes is not as all popular with lady guests, either.

SLEEPS IN SACK
We have heard of one lady, of rather modest tendency, who has been sleeping at the hotel every year for over 20 years and always sleeps in a sack, with the other end sewed up. She cannot abide the thought of going down a rope with her limbs waving in the air to the vulgar gaze of the spectators.

Years ago we knew a horse player who always stopped at the hotel. It was in the days of real bookmaking at the local race track.

You made a bet with a bookmaker by striking a slip of paper noting your wager in his pocket and settled with him that night, one way or the other. Usually it was one way.

Well, this horse player friend of mine was in mighty desperate straits one day. He owed a bookmaker about twice more than he ever could hope to pay, and it was one of those tough bookmakers at that. A bookmaker who likes to pull your right eye out and eat it for severity.

A BAD FLIGHT
At nightfall, one horse player went to his room with the rope fire escape and set out on the side of the hotel thinking of his bad plight. In coming to owing the bookmaker, he also was in the hotel stakes, as the boys say. Meaning that, owed the hotel. In fact, he owed everybody he could think of.

After paying the matter plenty of earnest thought, he decided that proposition. He decided to end it. His difficulty was that he had no means of getting out.

He did not own a gun. He had no money with which to bribe the hotel staff, and he was in a terrible predicament. Then his eye fell upon the fire escape rope, and he had an idea.

He decided to hang himself. He smiled as he thought of it, and also of the early predictions as to his probable fate.

ONE LITTLE ERROR
He uncoiled the rope and tested it to see that it was firmly attached to the hook. He fastened the loop and gently about his neck, opened a window, climbed up on the sill and held it steady.

"One for the money, two for the show, three, to make ready, and four to go!" Then he buried himself out into space. It seems, however, that our friend made one slight error. He failed to allow for the length of the rope.

The fire escape rope, in the hotel, are apportioned to the length of each floor from the surface of the earth. Every rope is measured to reach from the floor in the alley walk below.

Our friend should have shortened his rope by at least half to avoid the disaster. As it was, his hurtling body fell plumb to the ground, the rope forming curly-ques in the air behind him. And as luck would have it, the bookmaker, who was in the room, probably in pleasant contemplation of acquiring his friend's right eye,

A TOTAL FAILURE
Our friend hit the bookmaker, slip-slab, with all the weight of his body, and broke his own fall to such an extent that he was locally injured. But the excitement developed several ironical aspects. Our friend not only had to keep on living, but the bookmaker died him for a broken leg and a dislocated arm. The hotel had him arrested for trying to run out on his hotel bill, and he was in the mixer for several days, during which a number of horses he funded topped down there.

Since that time our friend has been one of the most ardent advocates for modern fire escapes on all buildings, but so far his campaign has had no effect on the ropes in this hotel.

FINAL STEPS ON EARTH BEFORE LAST MILE

elder DiStasio wrapped his few personal effects into a bundle and was allowed to say goodbye to his son, three cells down the block.

LAST GREETING
Fathers and son shook hands, but the guards, standing back, did not bear the heart conversation. Neither broke down, however. Then the father, DiStasio, was handcuffed to Sheriff Joseph M. McElroy and the two took the back seat of a sedan. Richard Walsh, jail guard, sat with the chauffeur. Excepting for one incident there was no conversation on the ride.

"Frank, there's Lechmere square," one of the officers said as they approached that spot. "That doesn't mean anything to me," DiStasio replied briefly. "I'll never see it again."

As he climbed out of the car, he waved at the prison photographers snapped the group. DiStasio refused, however, when asked by Sheriff McElroy if he wished to pose for another picture.

He was taken into the prison to pay for the "torch slaying" of Daniel M. Crowley, West End laborer. Di Stasio, carrying his few personal effects in a bag, is getting his last glimpse of sky and taking his few last steps before the final short walk from which no man returns.

DiStasio was visited last night by J. J. Roche of Cambridge, as a friend. Attorney William R. Bennett and Roche visited the jail and talked with him this morning. The condemned man for his term asked to see Attorney Francis, twenty five and seven minutes.

STEAM SHOVEL DROPS ON RAILS

Franklin, July 23.—Ten men were celebrating their escape from death today after a 20-ton steam shovel and trailer they were operating crashed through the railroad bridge on Main street here 43 feet to the tracks below.

Alfred Schwader of New Britain, Conn., and Joseph Giorio, of East Bridgewater, had just passed over the bridge with the steam shovel when the trailer crashed through. They leaped to safety as the trailer dragged the shovel back through the broken bridge.

Trains were held up for several hours and no emergency crew was put to work to clear the wreckage.

Miracle! Policeman Pays Man's Fine

New York, July 23 (U.S.)—A policeman today paid a motorist's fine in traffic court, causing Magistrate to exclaim:

"This is a miracle. I've never heard of a policeman doing it before. Keep it up. Keep it up. I'll suspend the fine."

The cop who paid the fine did so indirectly. He wasn't in court but the motorist, Benjamin Stutz, 34, a taxi driver of the Bronx, was explained that he was ordered to make a left-hand turn at a corner where left-hand turns are forbidden. This to avoid passing fire apparatus. Another policeman arrested him for making the turn. Then it was that the policeman who had ordered the driver to make the turn admitted it was his fault, and so passed over a dollar.

New Statute will frame it, as the judge told him.

RADIO WAVES HALT PIGEONS

Washington, July 23 (U.S.)—Amazing discovery that carrier pigeons are strangely affected by radio waves was announced by the navy department last night.

The discovery, made in a series of tests at Ocean Gate, N. J., immediately raised the question as to whether human beings may be similarly affected.

It was found that pigeons released from the Ocean Gate radio station, while it was transmitting, carried in an erratic and confused fashion for 15 to 20 minutes before heading for their home loft at Laticum, N. H. In one instance, a group of pigeons required 42 minutes to make the trip, another took 49 minutes, and a third group was 32 minutes in flight.

In starting, carrier pigeons released when the station was silent carried in the conventional manner and required for the same trip only five minutes. One group took the home ward flight in 21 minutes.

EMPLOYER AND BILL FACING OPPOSITION

A new Bill Eagle—similar to the famous Blue Eagle—of the N.R.A. era—looks for Massachusetts today under terms of a bill filed yesterday by Representative R. Gilbert Sullivan of Dorchester.

Adding to the three bills already proposed for employing the state's jobs in private industry, under terms of this bill, Representative Sullivan would have the Common wealth rebate to employers who take on new employees up to 50 per cent of the corporate income tax due the state.

It would be administered by an organization to be known as the State Emergency Re-Employment Contracting Agency, and employers who cooperated in the enterprise would be warranted to display an insignia, similar to the defunct N.R.A. "Blue Eagle."

EXACT OPPOSITION
Opposition to the bill is expected from makers of the new and old cloth, because the rebates to be paid under Representative Sullivan's proposal would come out of the five-eighths of the corporate tax which now goes to towns and cities.

HURLEY TAKES LEAD
Governor Hurley yesterday took the leadership in the employment bill, outlining a program of credit expansion.

Under Representative Sullivan's plan, employers would be granted tax rebates on an increasing schedule, ranging from 10 per cent rebate for each $1000 of wages paid in new employment from $1000 up to $10,000.

Over that, 20 per cent would be added for each additional $10,000 in employment, up to 50 per cent tax rebate for $50,000 paid out in new wages.

Missing Heiress Feared Drowned

Elkhart, Ind., July 22 (AP)—After 21 hours of searching for Jean Louise Wohlen, pretty 15-year-old Lancaster, Pa., heiress, who was believed to have been kidnapped or murdered, police was expressed today that she probably had drowned.

The drowning theory was advanced by State's Attorney Edward T. Bolger, despite the fact that dynamite of Northeast river, the vicinity of which the girl was last seen, had produced no explosion in midstream.

In his opinion this is purely a case of drowning. There is no evidence to support any other theory. It is evident to me, said Mr. Bolger, that Miss Wohlen took a swim in the river and failed to come back.

Hollywood, July 22 (UPI)—Ann Sothern is Hollywood's first commuting wife. ## BEAUTY A HANDICAP

"Please take a letter," Marion Davies as Margery Morrison begins work as a secretary in "Ever Since Eve" only to find that her beauty is a handicap. A scene from the new Cosmopolitan Production to be released by Warner Brothers. The picture is now appearing at Paramount and Fenway Theaters.

Five Success Rules For Film Players

Scores of involved formulas have been advanced from time to time for continued success in motion pictures.

In the opinion of Marion Davies, however, any screen player can prolong his occupancy of the top rung on the ladder of film fame by strict adherence to five simple rules.

- 1—Work hard.
- 2—Be modest.
- 3—Be courageous.
- 4—Be generous.
- 5—Keep faith with your fans.

Discussing her five rules, Miss Davies pointed out that the first one speaks for itself.

SWEELED HEAD BAD
"No one can succeed without hard work," she observed, "film players cannot retain success unless they work twice as hard as they did achieving it."

Concerning the second rule, the star of Cosmopolitans "Ever Since Eve" now on the Paramount and Fenway screens, said the greatest mistake that can befall a screen player is to develop what is commonly described as a "swelled head."

"An actor who becomes egotistical over success invariably becomes obnoxious. The public detects and promptly rejects any vanity," she said.

Film work, Miss Davies continued in explanation of rule three, requires plenty of courage.

"Sooner or later," she said, "every star will get a bad play and make a bad picture. They can't all be good. It takes courage to survive bad plays."

"However, if a star works hard and has the backbone to continue in the face of criticism and unfavorable reviews, another opportunity soon will offer itself with the possibility of undoing all the harm done."

Continuing, Miss Davies said that a star can always afford to be generous.

"Generosity," she continued, "will be demonstrated in many ways in pictures. It can be demonstrated in the studio."

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Skirts to be fashionable, will be shorter this fall.

The 14-inch length represents a hike about an inch above spring length, she said.

Maybe it's the polar light or stratosphere influence, but altitude affected several other styles for fall and winter.

Men will have higher crowns and be worn generally off the face, exposing the brow, and some waistlines will be higher.

Gold Loss Reasens Varied

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
The loss of $41,500,000 in gold by the United States in July 20, the first reversal in the steady large scale flow of gold to this country since October 16, 1936, is variously attributed to exchange stabilization operations and the silver, gold swap with China.

Since the Treasury Department has failed to indicate the exact forces behind the movement it is easy possible to guess at some of the reasons. In all likelihood both played a part in the latest big decrease since dollar devaluation. Treasury officials said that a considerable amount of gold was contributed to the loan, but later admitted that "an accumulation of things" brought the loss in gold holdings. The "things" undoubtedly represent recent dollar weakness against the pound and the yen.

The mechanism of the transactions responsible for the gold loss are found in the operation of the tripartite monetary agreement. The causes are found in the recent movement of the dollar against the pound and the yen. New York to Paris toward London and Amsterdam. As has been said, the two currencies bought the sale of francs and dollars and the purchase of pounds and yen. The dollar appeared to weaken along with the franc, while the two currencies bought with the proceeds strengthened. As a result of this exchange movement, the dollar was sold against the pound and the yen, and the franc was bought with the proceeds. The dollar was sold against the pound and the yen, and the franc was bought with the proceeds. The dollar was sold against the pound and the yen, and the franc was bought with the proceeds.

When one studies the reasons for the gold outflow it is only too apparent that the primary cause is the depreciation of the dollar against the pound and the yen. The dollar was sold against the pound and the yen, and the franc was bought with the proceeds. The dollar was sold against the pound and the yen, and the franc was bought with the proceeds. The dollar was sold against the pound and the yen, and the franc was bought with the proceeds.

In answer to questions regarding the manner in which the gold was sold, it is stated that the gold was sold in the form of gold certificates. The gold was sold in the form of gold certificates. The gold was sold in the form of gold certificates. The gold was sold in the form of gold certificates. The gold was sold in the form of gold certificates.

Under present conditions it will be comparatively easy to replace the gold lost. The gold was sold in the form of gold certificates. The gold was sold in the form of gold certificates. The gold was sold in the form of gold certificates. The gold was sold in the form of gold certificates. The gold was sold in the form of gold certificates.

EXCESS New Trade Decline Recovery

By MERTLE STANLEY RUCKEYER
(Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service)
New York, July 23—Population growth and the development of new industries help to terminate depressions in the United States and to make prosperity the norm.

At the end of the last depression there was much mental preparation as to what new industry would arise to give stimulus to an expansion in employment opportunities. In 1921, the acceptance of the automobile industry turned the revival.

When the crash came in 1929, Mr. Harcourt's "Industrial and economic leaders looked to the future. They saw the need for a new industry to give stimulus to an expansion in employment opportunities. In 1921, the acceptance of the automobile industry turned the revival.

By 1932, when the country was in the midst of a depression, the infant industry's lusty growth was giving reason for optimism. When sales for 1933 rose to $1,000,000,000, it was a sign of things to come. By 1935, sales had more than doubled, and new markets for air conditioning were opening up with startling rapidity.

Sen. Austin Backs Protest Against Palestine Split

Inmate the world's national protest against Green, Britain's proposed partition of Palestine, Resolving Syria, Austin of Vermont is now called for immediate action to secure a Jewish national home in the Holy Land.

In an article written originally for the Boston Evening American, Senator Austin demanded a unanimous call to quell the unrest in Palestine.

U. S. Senator from Vermont

Washington, July 23—As a co-sponsor of the World War Palestine pledge to be under the sovereignty of Turkey, and was placed under a British mandate, the United States has a responsibility for creating in the country such political, administrative and economic conditions as will secure the establishment of a Jewish state.

Senator Austin said that the United States, Great Britain's plan to partition on the Holy Land today headed for a stormy opposition before the League of Nations.

The first of the protests to the scheme in favor of Palestine to separate Jewish and Arab states as a means of settling age-old differences of race and religion came from the Jews hereafter under mandate to France.

The Syrian government at Damascus, Great Britain's plan to partition on the Holy Land today headed for a stormy opposition before the League of Nations.

home for the Jewish people. The Prime Minister also undertook development of "a greater degree of self-reliance and self-sufficiency" and the "evolution of the character of Palestine" in 1924 the League of Nations entrusted the British Mandate for Palestine to the British Majesty's High Commissioner for Palestine.

My study of the problem, made in the Holy Land last summer, convinced me that the only way to solve the problem was to bring the United Kingdom to the aid of the Holy Land. Liberal member of Parliament, Sir Herbert Morrison, London turn over the authority and the responsibility of the Holy Land to the view of the British government's High Commissioner for Palestine to administer its mandate.

Internal Revenue Collections Up in Past Year

Rising Payrolls Aid Cigarette Consumption

ing payments are booting cigarette consumption well above the 1929 record, but higher costs have held cigarette profits, figures disclosed today.

Trade sources pointed out that in the history of the industry increased national income invariably resulted in heavy switching from the roll-to-loose, to the manufactured type and to a lesser extent, from pipes to cigarettes.

751,000 in 1934 to $364,245,000 in 1935. The latter figure was $352,254,000 in 1936. Miscellaneous taxes, including excise imposed, $1,406,000 to $143,346,000.

Revenue from the levy on gifts dropped to $164,000 in 1935, $133,000 in 1936. Receipts from gift tax sales or transfers fell $1,704,000 to $11,350,000.

Collections from all internal revenue taxes total $463,000,000 in 1936, $461,000,000 in 1935 and $453,000,000 in 1934.

The analysts, in a review of the industry, pointed out that net incomes of five leading companies are still below the 1932 level, because of high operating and inventory costs. The outlook for the future, however, appears better in view of a possible decline in leaf tobacco prices."

Mail Order Sales Increase Narrows

gain has been more or less expected in view of the substantial boost in 1936 sales resulting from improved buying power in both the industrial and rural areas.

To a certain extent this handicap has been overcome by further expansion of credit facilities and goods, which is accounting for an increase in volume expected to continue in coming months. Opinions are also being expressed that the year's available points toward a continuation for at least the balance of the year.

Some slight falling off of volume has been noted in highly industrialized sections as a result of labor unrest, but as a whole chain stores' sales have been holding up fairly well and it is expected that steps will be taken to prevent an increasing amount of business from this source in the coming months.

prospects now are that prices at women's wear will be boosted this fall, which if followed by the clothing houses, should help dollar volume considerably since an important share of total sales comes from the classification.

Tuna Contempt Of Hook Tiring To Fishermen

The mystery of the missing tuna, or why the big boys won't bite, is a "melodramatic" that's got the New England fishing fraternity a little daffy.

New fishermen are among other things the world's most confirmed optimists.

It must have been fishermen Hoover who said: "Prosperity is just around the corner. Back in 1928 and it must have been another Hoover, who predicted a business budget for 1938."

For fishermen the world has never been as easy as it once was. Tuna fishing in areas was once a pretty good "get rich quick" scheme. When they did catch fish, you have a good many reasons for not catching them. Back in 1928 and it must have been another Hoover, who predicted a business budget for 1938.

THE REASONS WHY

The reasons for the tuna catch in 1937 are about the same as in 1928. The fish is still there, but the fishermen are not catching it.

THIS IS LIFE

By
Robert E. Rogers

The next time you have occasion to calculate your federal income taxes you can remember that a lot of New Deal traveling officials are helping boost it. Even in the taxable brackets you can remember that your landlord, your provision dealer, your clothing and your automobile manufacturers are presumably paying taxes—which they promptly pass on to you according to the old old arm game.

Speaking of the arm game, Representative Harold Knudson of Minnesota, a Republican and a Swede, and hence doubly likely to be a little canny and a little cunning, is giving recent money estimates that the last three years of the New Deal have cost us in traveling alone two hundred million dollars—and we will have paid it since 1933. This includes the indirect taxes for 1933, which is for up to each of what is now called the A. E. F. France.

Much Deal Money Gone With the Winds

We have grown so accustomed to hearing about the vast deficit in our national expenditures, the annual appropriations and all that Representative Knudson's little figures about what travel expenses are under the New Deal will probably strike most of us as merely loose change.

Recently another congressman pointed out that the franking privilege for government mail is costing us an equal amount, two hundred millions. Travel money figures have more than doubled since 1931-32, without, not counting upkeep and maintenance of automobiles, nor counting additional millions for transport of government freight.

In 1936 and 1937 the Resettlement Administration alone spent more than ten million dollars. Come with the wind, like so many other expenditures of the New Deal.

The Public Works Administration travel expenses for the period total more than four million. The Home Owners Loan, four million and a half. The Farm Credit Administration, three and a half million in two years.

"It has spent so much money for travel that it should be called a travel bureau," says Mr. Knudson. "Though their losses are steadily going down, their travel expense is getting larger every year. Their figures represent an expense of $16 for each individual to whom a loan was made."

Getting Jungle Data To "Aid" Dust Bowl

Secretary Wallace's department by itself tops the travel expenditures of the War Department, the Navy Department and the Post Office. In 1936 almost eight million, in 1937 about the same, for 1938 nearly seven millions. Of course the President has requested for the coming year a 10 per cent saving of all money appropriated, so that we probably can count on that.

"Business of raucous and derisive lip-ounds expressing doubt."

I like what Representative Knudson has to say about the Soil Conservation Service.

From the contents of the latest gem of literature on soil conservation I see they have been scouring the hinterlands of China, the Punjab plains of India, the veldt of South Africa, the islands of Java and Sumatra, and several other remote places to find out how they do things there.

"They have made studies where the rainfall is as much as 270 inches a year and will undoubtedly use these studies to determine just what ought to be done to rectify conditions in the dust bowl of the great plains."

"Cheat Sheet" Making Uncle Sam Bankrupt

"While all these gems of literature were being prepared, the Soil Conservation Service had run up a travel expense for 1936 amounting to $91,110. By 1937 they had increased the travel expense to $115,263. For 1938 they are asking for $350,534 of the taxpayers' money for travel expense."

I should say that the great American art of preparing and doctoring a "cheat sheet" has been taken scientifically in hand in Washington and taught to jump through hoops.

Nearly any traveling salesman knows that most expense accounts could be pared down by a third, without really getting parsimonious. If the entire New Deal system is being conducted along these lines of expenditure, it is no wonder that as a nation we are rapidly going bankrupt.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By
Ann Marsters

In the Morning Mail—From a gentleman reader comes a letter about which we shall refrain from making any comment:

"I wish you might make this suggestion to women in your column—that they PLEASE stop talking about politics. Nothing so annoys a man as to have a woman babble on and on about politics."

After all, women have been a great disappointment in the political world. They made a frightful fuss about the vote, and they got it. And from that day to this, they have had not the slightest effect on anything that goes on in Washington.

"Poor dears, they had not the sense to see that women have always exerted their influence behind the scenes—in drawing-rooms. When they emerge into active political life, they become funny bodes, and end up on the committee of some provincial tea-club, making tiresome speeches about international affairs—of which they understand nothing."

From Mrs. J. M. of West Newton, comes this letter about which we WILL comment:

"My husband thinks that health is everything, absolutely everything. He gets so furious at any suggestion that it's not."

He says that this machine age is breeding generations of under-cured morose. He says that the only healthy occupation left, apart from professional athletics, is farming, and he wants all our sons to be farmers.

And They Can Sleep Later as Bankers Than Farmers

"But I do not want them to go in the bank. All my family have been in banking."

Mrs. J. M. may tell her husband that statistics prove that the human race is growing taller and heavier, whatever people say about machinery.

Young people entering universities are about two inches taller and seven pounds heavier than those of the last generations. More than half of the farmers live to be over seventy—and so do about half of the bankers.

'HIVE BEES' WONDERS' HAVE WON 19 OUT OF LAST 27

BEES KNOCKING AT FIRST DIVISION IN CELLAR MONTH AGO

There goes another theory completely smashed. Since the inception of the lively baseball, the accepted axiom was "you must have hitting power to win."

Maybe it's true in many cases but those Bees, who have been violating plenty of rules during this past month, have definitely proved that you don't need slugging to win ball games.

They have revived the old art of pitching and have shown conclusively that a good hurler is worth a half dozen hitters.

To make their case as near perfect as possible, the local bees point with pride to the last 27 games they have played.

During this stretch they have captured 19 games. Indeed if the National League race had opened on June 27, these bees, the McGraws, would be just four per cent age points out of first place.

Going back to the dark and dreary days of late June, the Bees at the bottom of the cellar, after an eleven game losing streak.

LOOK AT THE FIGURES

On that date the standing was:

| Team         | Won | Lost | Pct. |
|--------------|-----|------|------|
| Chicago      | 20  | 25   | .444 |
| St. Louis    | 20  | 25   | .444 |
| New York     | 20  | 25   | .444 |
| Pittsburgh   | 20  | 25   | .444 |
| Baltimore    | 20  | 25   | .444 |
| Cincinnati   | 20  | 25   | .444 |
| Philadelphia | 20  | 25   | .444 |
| Boston       | 20  | 25   | .444 |

Now the Bees are in fifth place, have won 19 out of the last 27 games, and are taking the lead in the cellar.

At the bottom of the cellar, after an eleven game losing streak, the Bees have accomplished since that date:

Won Lost Pct.

|--------------|----|----|------|
| New York     | 12 | 8  | .600 |
| BOSTON       | 19 | 8  | .704 |
| Chicago      | 13 | 10 | .565 |
| Pittsburgh   | 13 | 10 | .565 |
| Cincinnati   | 8  | 16 | .333 |
| Brooklyn     | 9  | 15 | .369 |
| Philadelphia | 8  | 17 | .320 |
| St. Louis    | 7  | 17 | .292 |

Now the remarkable streak is due to the fact that the Bees have scored 10 runs in 10 of the last 27 games, which is an average of less than five runs a game.

Any club, normally with the run average would not be anything to write home about, but when you have a pitching staff that holds opponents to 74 runs in the same number of games or less, that's a different story.

LET'S GREAT WORK

Lefty Grove, the sensational first baseman, and the parade won four victories against no defeat in three four wins, three were extra innings.

He pitched a total of 45 innings for the four games, allowed only one earned run and allowed an average of less than six hits per game.

The pitching records during this 27 game stretch have been:

Won Lost Pct.

|          |   |   |       |
|----------|---|---|-------|
| Felt     | 4 | 0 | 1.000 |
| Lanning  | 3 | 0 | 1.000 |
| Mitchell | 2 | 0 | 1.000 |
| Turner   | 4 | 1 | .800  |
| Bush     | 2 | 0 | 1.000 |
| McFadden | 3 | 2 | .600  |
| Gardner  | 2 | 3 | .400  |

This wild surge started with a win over the Reds and has just been continued with a win over the Cardinals in the last game.

ON GAME TODAY

During the four games the Bees have held the Cards to five runs and 23 hits.

Make those pitchers who were in a rut and had for Brooklyn where they hope the going will be a bit more pleasant and the pitching staff quite tough.

Meanwhile, the McGraws have a day off today. The game scheduled with the Pirates this afternoon has been moved up to provide a doubleheader on Sunday.

The Pittsburgh series gets under way tomorrow. Jim Turner will pitch the opening assignment. There are three games slated with the "Smoky City" crew. After that the treacherous Reds have a swing around the circuit.

U. S. Bars Partition Cut Adrift?

THE British government is now being severely arraigned at the bar of British public opinion for hatching the iniquitous scheme to dismember and Balkanize Palestine.

The severe indictment of the partition scheme made by Lloyd George in last Sunday's Hearst papers has already had international reverberations.

The challenge of Lord Snell, the Laborite leader in the House of Lords, goes even further than that of Lloyd George.

Not only does Lord Snell announce that BRITISH LABOR WILL NEVER SUPPORT THE PARTITION PLAN, but he denounces the proposed measure in unanswerable terms.

Both Lloyd George and Lord Snell have first-hand knowledge of the Palestine problem.

It was under the premiership of Lloyd George that the Balfour Declaration pledging the establishment of a Jewish National Home in Palestine was promulgated.

Lord Snell was a member of the Royal Commission sent to Palestine after the riots in 1929.

Every point raised by both Lloyd George and Lord Snell is a striking confirmation of the findings and conclusions of the impartial Hearst unofficial senatorial commission which surveyed the situation in Palestine last summer.

LORD SNELL reiterates the charge made by Senators Copeland, Austin and Hastings that it was the BRITISH ADMINISTRATION of Palestine that FAILED, and not the mandate setting aside Palestine for the Jews.

"We have to say it is not right that the failure of administrative action should be held a failure of the mandate," declares Lord Snell.

THERE IS THE CRUX OF THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT'S ATTEMPTS TO HIDE ITS PURPOSE BEHIND THE CRY THAT THE MANDATE IS UNWORKABLE.

The British failed in Palestine in their "first clear duty... to suppress disorder and insure personal security," according to Lord Snell.

The American senators have stressed this failure as the result of a WILFUL POLICY.

The British thus failed in creating the primary condition for the promotion of a Jewish Homeland TO WHICH THEY STAND PLEDGED.

They DID succeed in creating conditions which would PREVENT understanding and co-operation between Arabs and Jews.

Yet the British government would have the world believe now that its plan to partition Palestine and to nullify its earlier solemn undertakings is for the welfare of the people of Palestine.

LORD SNELL, in criticizing the efforts of the British Cabinet to RUSH THROUGH the partition scheme, showed that he was familiar with the report of our senatorial commission.

"The United States has some treaty rights in this matter," Lord Snell warned his government, and asked if the United States "consented to the vivisection of Palestine."

It is a question which can have but one answer. American public opinion will never consent to the vivisection of ANY LAND, and least of all the Holy Land.

The American people will never accept the scrapping of treaties and contracts as part of the code of international relations.

And the American conscience will never tolerate any attempt to rob the persecuted Jews of the Old World of their only haven in the ancient land of Israel—a haven which is theirs by right of glorious achievements in the past as well as the present.

Drive for Lower Rents

CONVINCED that rents are too high, President Roosevelt has directed Federal housing experts to investigate and see what can be done to relieve the situation.

He says some families now have to pay 50 per cent of their income for rent where as it used to be the practice to spend no more than 20 per cent for this purpose.

This rent-reduction campaign will be popular in many New England communities. There are so many tenants that landlords, and even that isn't enough. And with all the sales taxes loaded upon them by Federal and State governments and social security taxes, the lowest income groups have less and less all the time left for rent.

Tax gouging promotes excessive rents in two ways. First, it directly increases rents, for what the tenant pays includes, of course, all the taxes on the property he occupies. Second, oppressive taxation discourages building and increases the number of tenants while holding down the number of homes which are available for renting.

There may be some question about the ability of government to regulate rents directly, but there is no question about its power to reduce taxes and, thereby, cut rents indirectly.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, July 23. Thoughts were made of those great after-dinner take-lays, the "New York Day by Day" column, which has been a staple of the "New York Times" for many years.

The American people will never accept the scrapping of treaties and contracts as part of the code of international relations.

And the American conscience will never tolerate any attempt to rob the persecuted Jews of the Old World of their only haven in the ancient land of Israel—a haven which is theirs by right of glorious achievements in the past as well as the present.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

"There is too much pettiness in the world," declared a woman in a recent conversation. "In our own country we are too much dominated by women. We are too much dominated by women."

The American people will never accept the scrapping of treaties and contracts as part of the code of international relations.

And the American conscience will never tolerate any attempt to rob the persecuted Jews of the Old World of their only haven in the ancient land of Israel—a haven which is theirs by right of glorious achievements in the past as well as the present.

End of Dalton Gang

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Power and never turned a hair. PLAYS FOR TIME. "That safe one pronto or we'll shoot you down." The words came back to his head.

FOUR MEET HERE
That was what Bob and Emmett Dalton walked into when they stepped out of the First National Bank of Coffeyville.

LAST DALTON DAYS
After he had served fourteen years and a half, he had been a model prisoner. The error figured he might make a Sunday school class.

What had happened was one of those intricate breaks which make or mar a life. Then it came. The cashier of the Coffeyville National Bank, who was the only one left in the bank, looked across into the muzzles of the big marks as carried by Dick Dalton, Broadwell and Bill.

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

Wherever there is a disturbance in the world, England is the first to be involved. The British Empire runs around the world. It is a second empire.

One of the greatest illusions of the human mind is political and economic "internationalism."

The products of the genius of man belong to the whole world. Politics and economics are inseparable. Politics and economics are ALWAYS LOCAL.

After leaving Singapore the fleet of the British Empire takes another dip into Australia and New Zealand, another mighty knot.

WATCH HER STRIDE
That is the woman who wears domestic models of audacity and respectability are suddenly transformed into sassy, haughty and consciousness fibers and jostled by women's sense of responsibility.

WHY IS PETTICOAT DANGEROUS?
This type of person is known as an EGOMANIAC. There are some of the symptoms are harmful to the community. They are pompous, up-at-night, high-hat and stuff-shirted snobs.

When, however, the ego is exposed to the light of day, it is the case of the petticoat. It is the case of the petticoat. It is the case of the petticoat.

Credit Plan Aids Jobless

THE hopes of industry in Massachusetts should be turning faster than the action of Federal banking institutions to extend credit to businessmen.

More working capital means increased jobs for the unemployed. It is a forward step and should be pushed to the limit.
